"...delivers impressive business outcomes" - Forbes

Frontline teams are the engine of change in challenging times. But, uncertainty can drive people apart. You must bind them together and turn threats into opportunities.

Don't waste your employees' energy and insight, they know how your business works. They can develop and deliver the best outcomes. But, they need the right tools.

With All In Game 8 people can achieve amazing outcomes in less than half a day, without leaving the office. It's intense, enjoyable and memorable. Everyone owns the outcomes and shares a commitment to act.

HOW DO YOU ENGAGE TEAMS EFFECTIVELY?

How do you encourage teams to work together?

How do you catalyse innovative problem-solving?

How do you align individuals with strategy?

How do you ensure consistent implementation?

How do you develop trust and commitment?

How do you translate strategy into meaningful actions?

ALL IN GAME ANSWERS ALL OF THESE QUESTIONS.

How does All In Game work?

All In Game encourages teams to explore your strategic and tactical issues and then develop individual action plans they can implement immediately. All In Game is self-contained, self-directed and happens in the workplace without external support.

All In Game is not revolutionary; it is just a more effective way of helping people solve problems. Its power comes from its simplicity.

In a single half-day workshop 8 people will achieve real outcomes for your business. All In Game is easy to use and happens in the workplace without expensive external support.

When do we use All In Game?

The game offers a framework to turn your strategy into workable actions. The people playing each game personalise it and make the discussions and outputs relevant to their specific needs. The participants generate discussions, ideas and actions based on their organisation's strategic challenges, initiatives and goals.

All In Game is competitive and collaborative; an individual can be a winner but only if everyone works together. And, you don't need external support because the team 'owns' and manages the process and the outcomes. It's a strategic action workshop in a box that's ideal for:

- Strategy implementation
- Team building
- Leadership development
- Problem solving
- Project kick-offs
- New product launches

Why a game?

Games are incredibly powerful tools. Games are familiar, they're relaxing not threatening. They unlock creative innovation. Within minutes the group is buzzing with discussion, laughter and activity; all without a trained facilitator. The discussions are real and honest. The commitment to act is sustained.

All In Game is a more effective way of helping people to solve problems. Its power comes from its simplicity.
